

MANY LAWS TO BE PROPOSED

Coming Session Of The Legislature Promises
Many Reforms Enacted Soon.

ALL FIGHTS UNDER THE SURFACE

Brief Review Of Important Measures That May Come Up
For Consideration During The Coming Winter.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—Wisconsin's legislators gather in biennial session at noon of Wednesday, January 9, and from the fall of the gavel of Lieutenant Governor W. D. Connor and the election of a speaker of the assembly, the two houses will begin to grind a momentous grist of new statutes. There is much certainty in regard to the character of the legislation to be enacted. It will doubtless be a session of positive reform legislation, along the line inaugurated by Governor (now senator) R. M. La Follette, but there will be little of the factional bitterness that prevailed during the heart-breaking sessions when he was in the executive office. Those who opposed his reforms are now in favor of the general movement he championed. They seem to be "benevolently assimilated" by the wave of reform which swept La Follette into the United States senate and they are apparently content that it is so, so long as their arch enemy is not immediately at hand to make their seeming conversion humiliating.

While there is general harmony as to the directions in which important legislation shall go, there of course will develop some strife as to details and extent of the drastic character of the proposed new laws. It is in the air that there will be some legislation along the following lines:

To regulate the issuance of stock by corporations.
To regulate insurance to adjust insurance taxation.

MUCH OF IMPORTANCE TO BE DONE NEXT WEEK

Newfoundland And Fisheries Matter May Be Settled--Railway Legislation To Be Discussed.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—The wheels of legislation at the national capitol will turn swiftly during the coming week, according to present prospects. Much routine business will be rushed through and some of the more important measures on the agenda, probably, will be brought up. The House committee on merchant marine and fisheries will meet Monday, when it is expected the committee's attitude on the ship subsidy bill will be decided. On Tuesday the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce will begin hearings on the Sherman bill requiring all railroads to issue mileage books at the uniform rate of two cents a mile.

The sessions of the state legislatures will begin during the week in Texas, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Kansas, Alabama, North Carolina, Illinois, Connecticut and one or two other states. In most of the states the new officials will take office at the same time.

The case of the packing corporations indicted for conspiracy in restraint of trade is set for trial in Chicago next Thursday. Another case, trust suit that will occupy attention is that brought to court the Standard Oil company and its affiliated companies from the state of Missouri. This suit is to come up for hearing at St. Louis, Monday.

Stockholders of the Seaboard Air Line will meet Thursday to give their approval to the plan for a $18,000,000 bond issue.

On Saturday next, in this city, the isthmian canal commission will open bids for the completion of the construction of the Panama canal.

The seventh National Automobile show will open Saturday in Madison Square Garden, New York, to continue through the following week.

The supreme court of Newfoundland on Tuesday will hear the appeal of the west coast fishermen against the decision of a magistrate fining them $500 each for violating the Bait act by fishing for American vessels within territorial waters. The case involves the modus vivendi between Great Britain and the United States, guaranteeing immunity to fishermen if they are shipped outside the three-mile line.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Janesville, Ohio, Monday, at which definite consideration of the location of this year's national encampment will be taken up.

Professional baseball will be in the limelight during the week, with meetings to be held by the minor leagues in New York and by the National commission in Cincinnati. The schedule committees of the two major leagues also will meet to eliminate conflicting dates.

Iowa, as a driver of a patent medicine wagon. At Garner today it was said Steele was supposed to be at Klemata, a few miles away from Garner.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.
The commission on the unification of the publishing houses of the Methodist Episcopal church is considering details of the plan in executive session at Buffalo, N. Y.

Arthur R. Davis, mayor of Fayette, Mo., and president of the Farmers and Merchants' bank of that city, who accidentally shot himself while looking for burglars at his residence, died of the wound.

A receiver for the Bennington, Vt. Gas Company was asked for in a petition filed in the county court by J. C. Colgate of New York. Mr. Colgate holds a note for $15,000 on which, it is alleged, payment has been defaulted. The operation of the plant will not be interrupted.

Examining Accounts: Committee No. 9 of the county board, composed of Supervisors E. C. Hopkins and L. E. Gettle of Edgerton and J. L. McEvoy of Beloit, is at the court house today running over and auditing the books of the county officers in preparation for the January meeting of the board.

Fake Mine Promoter (to investor)—You keep the beautiful rain bow as a guarantee of my good faith—and I assure you, as long as you put coin in the Skinnamagins mine there'll be money in it.

DEPUTY SHERIFF'S PAY WAS REDUCED

Jefferson County Supervisors Cut Salaries from $200 to $50—Offices May Go Begging.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fort Atkinson, Jan. 4.—The county board of supervisors at their last meeting reduced the salary of deputy sheriffs to fifty dollars per year. There are six of them to be appointed and it remains to be seen whether the sheriff can secure men to serve at that salary. It was extremely difficult to get men when two hundred dollars a year was offered. It is, therefore, feared that these important offices will go begging in Jefferson county this year. A number of prominent citizens believe that a fair compensation should be offered or the office discontinued entirely.

Grand Army Officers
The Fort Atkinson Post, No. 159, of the Grand Army of the Republic, have elected the following new officers for the ensuing year: Commander, De Witt Wilcox; Senior Vice Commander, John Wolf; Junior Vice Commander, Philip Geiger; Adjutant, Gilbert Scott; Quartermaster, Herman Zenger; Surgeon, Henry Ogden; Chaplain, John Damuth; Officer of the Day, James Ellis; Officer of the Guard, William Dawley.

To Live in the Fort
John Haberman and Miss Louisa Splinterger, both young people of Waterloo, who were married in Janesville last week, will make their home in this city, upon their return from a short wedding trip. Mr. Haberman has an excellent position with the Northwestern Manufacturing company.

Wisconsin Salesman
J. W. Wolf of Waukesha, at one time a resident of this vicinity, has been engaged by the Northwestern Manufacturing company to handle the greater part of Wisconsin as salesman. G. L. Smith, now residing in Milwaukee, still holds the southern tier of counties, his health not permitting more territory. Mr. Wolf has many friends in the city who will be pleased to have him once more identified with our interests.

HUNDRED MAY HAVE DROWNED IN PACIFIC

Life Rafts of Vessel Which Recently Sailed From Frisco Have Floated Ashore.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Jan. 5.—A report was received late last night to the effect that several life rafts and other wreckage, with the name, "City of Panama" on them, came ashore at Wardell Beach, last evening. The "City of Panama" sailed from here Dec. 21, 1906, bound for the Isthmus, with fifteen first cabin, fifteen steerage passengers, twenty-six Chinese and a crew numbering fifty-six.

Do Not Believe Report
San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 5.—Officials of the Merchants' Exchange and of the Pacific Mail Steamship company here do not believe the steamer City of Panama has been wrecked. It is surmised that life rafts which are nearly always kept partially provisioned may have been swept away during a gale and if so, they would have had just about time enough drift to Wardell Beach where they went ashore.

C., Jan. 5.—The Ninth and Tenth cavalry and the Twenty-fifth infantry, including all the negro soldiers in the regular army of this country, have been ordered to prepare for service in the Philippines and will sail at different times between March 5 and June 5th. It is stated by Major General Bell, chief of staff, that the negro regiments are being sent to the Philippines because it is their turn to go and not because of any desire to get them out of the United States at this time.

ROYAL WEDDING IN GERMANY NEXT JUNE

Fourth Son of Emperor William and Princess of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Berlin, Jan. 5.—It is semi-officially stated that the wedding of Prince Augustus William, fourth son of Emperor William, and Princess Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, whose engagement was announced last week, will take place next June. The marriage ceremony will take place in the palace chapel at Potsdam and will be performed by Dr. Dryander, the imperial chaplain. The announcement of the betrothal was received with much public interest, as Prince Augustus William is one of the most popular members of the imperial family. He is a manly, vigorous young man, appreciating his position as a member of the imperial house, but with nothing of the prig about him. Born January 26, 1887, he will be twenty years old the latter part of this month. The Prince owes much of his popularity to the fact that he is very much like the old emperor, William I., in his ways. Like his father, Prince Augustus William was educated at the military academy at Ploen, in Holstein, where their mother, the empress, was born. He is a dauntless horseman, and displayed much devotion to his military studies. He is an accomplished linguist, speaking French, English and Italian fluently and having some knowledge of Russian and Spanish. Princess Alexandra, the bride to be, is nineteen years old, three months younger than the Prince. She is a niece of the empress, and the young couple are also remotely related on the male side, as they had a common ancestor at the beginning of the seventeenth century. The Princess is a great niece of Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, who married a New York girl, Miss Mary Lee. Prince Frederick took his bride on a honeymoon trip to the Holy Land, and died suddenly after a few hours' illness on his way home. His widow subsequently became the wife of Count Waldersee, one of the most distinguished German soldiers of his time.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS 'SAIL FOR AMERICA

Squadron Left Tokio Today and Are Enroute to Hawaii and Pacific Coast Cities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Tokio, Jan. 5.—A squadron of Japanese warships sailed today to pay a friendly visit to the western coasts of the United States and Canada. The warships will proceed first to Honolulu, arriving there January 23. From the Hawaiian Islands the fleet will proceed to San Diego, Cal., and after a brief stay will sail for San Francisco, then proceeding to Puget Sound, visiting Seattle and Tacoma about the end of February. Early in March, Esquimaux and Vancouver will be visited. The squadron consists of the Hashidate, Tsukushima, and Matsushima, all protected cruisers. The three vessels are lesser types of the fighting machines of Japan and are all old vessels, veterans of the China-Japan war. The squadron is in command of Rear Admiral Tomeoka, late president of the naval cadets' school and who commanded the third cruiser squadron at the battle of Tsushima.

HENRY CLAY FRICK COULD HAVE BEEN REAL LEADER

Millionaire Steel Magnate Had Opportunity
Of Being Selected As President Of
The Pennsylvania Railroad System.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Jan. 5.—For the fourth time in his life, Henry Clay Frick has leaped into national prominence. When President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Railroad company was taken seriously ill last summer and it seemed that he was no longer able with his old vigor to struggle with the vast problems presented to the head of that great system, the directors, it is said, cast about for a possible successor in the event of Mr. Cassatt's death. They fixed upon Mr. Frick. While the former steel magnate did not accept the presidency, it is quite certain that he is to be the dominating force in the affairs of the Pennsylvania. He is already a director and the largest individual owner of stock.

Mr. Frick is a remarkable man and has had a remarkable career. Not only national but international attention was riveted upon him for the first time in July, 1892, when the anarchist Bergmann attempted to assassinate Mr. Frick in his office in Pittsburgh. It was during the famous Homestead steel strike.

In 1904 it was heralded broadcast that Mr. Frick had procured the appointment of Attorney General Philander C. Knox as United States Senator from Pennsylvania, and although this was not the fact, yet for a second time was Mr. Frick thrown conspicuously into the limelight of publicity.

A year ago attention was again directed toward Mr. Frick by his appointment as chairman of the investigating committee of the Equitable Assurance Society, and by the announcement that he was to desert Pittsburgh to spend the remainder of his life in this city.

As to Mr. Frick's career. He was born in Fayette County, Pa., in 1849, and while a boy became one (Continued on Page 7.)

MORE TESTIMONY ON RAILROAD COMBINE

Interstate Commerce Commission Has Another Hearing in New York City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 5.—The interstate commerce commission continued today at the federal building, its inquiry into the so-called "Harriman lines," acting upon its general order for an investigation of the railroads of the country to discover whether or not there were combinations or agreements existing which are in restraint of trade, or violate acts relating to interstate commerce. E. T. Jeffery, president of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad and affiliated lines, including the proposed Western Pacific railroad, was the first witness before the commission today. The witness read from his recent annual report in which he stated that the Union Pacific had control of the Southern Pacific lines and it had resulted in "unexpected difficulties" and "unlooked for impediments" in getting business through to the coast and therefore "the building of a competitive line" from Salt Lake to San Francisco had been undertaken to protect the Rio Grande's interests. He said prior to the consolidation the Union and Southern Pacific were competing lines within a certain territory, but not on all business.

DEPARTMENT HAS MANY NEW PLANS

VISITS FOREIGN LANDS FOR NEW IDEAS.

SEEKS NEW INDUSTRIES

Then Presents Results of Their Labor to the Farmers of This Country.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—One of the important branches of the work of the Department of Agriculture is that of exploring foreign lands for new crops. At present this part of the service is not as large as the department would like, but it is hoped congress will make provision for an extension at this session. During the past year a trained man has been in the cultivated fields and wild mountains of North China and Manchuria, searching for new plants and seeds worthy to be transplanted to this country, and for wild forms of our cultivated fruits and vegetables which may have characters of hardness or unusual vigor which will make them useful for plant breeders of the United States. Shipments of seeds and interesting things have been sent by him and are now undergoing trials here. Among those secured are new hardy Pekin persimmons, interesting varieties of English walnuts, the Chinese pistache, wild and cultivated apricots, the wild peach from its supposed original home, hardy apples and edible fruited hawthorns, millers and field beans, a lawn sedge, and a very remarkable lot of Chinese varieties of ornamental trees and shrubs, suited to the climate of the eastern and middle states.

What is believed to be a discovery that will be an epoch in the agriculture of the northwestern prairie regions of this country, has been made by the department's explorer, Prof. N. E. Hansen, of the South Dakota Agricultural Experiment station, of a Siberian alfalfa, an excellent forage plant with yellow instead of the usual blue flowers. This plant is native of the dry steppes of Siberia, where the mercury sometimes freezes without snow. It is said the plant can withstand a temperature of about forty degrees below zero, with no protection. Dr. Hansen is making a study of the plant with a view to its cultivation in this country, and has sent the department quantities of the seed, which will be given a thorough trial at an early date. It will supplement durum wheat in a rotative system and avoid the necessity of summer fallowing. Arabian alfalfa is being grown in California and the southern states but on account of its lack of hardness is unsuited to the colder parts of the country. A species of vetch called the Tangier pea, has proved superior to all others in California in its luxuriance of growth, having yielded as high as nine tons of green food per acre. On account of its great amount of herbage it effectively chokes out weeds. A large quantity of this seed is being selected and tested, with a view to its introduction next season.

The Angora goat industry has developed remarkably during the last five years, it being estimated that there are in this country about one million Angoras, distributed in all the states and territories. The largest flocks are in Texas, but the northwest has also successful flocks, and no part of the country is unfitted for them. Angoras endure extremes of heat and cold and thrive on all kinds of soil except wet land. They prefer rocky land covered with brush. The densely covered rough lands of the south, the worn-out farms of New England, and the "stumpage" districts of Michigan and Wisconsin are especially adapted to them. Their habit

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Costs Nothing To Try.
Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odoriferous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the noxious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of tartar.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

of browsing makes them valuable for clearing land of brush. Their chief value is in their long, silky fleeces, known as mohair, which is largely used in the making of plush, imitation astrakhan and mohair dress goods, or brilliantines. The goats are much less subject to disease than sheep.

Senator Scott of West Virginia is opposed to the restriction of labor by children under 16 years of age. There is pending in the senate a bill to prohibit the employment in the District of Columbia of minors under 16 years. In speaking of the bill Senator Scott said: "Many boys I have known had to make their living before they were sixteen years old, and many a boy has to support his aged mother and perhaps younger children. People may talk about the morals of the boys and girls under 16 being ruined by labor. What possible legislation could be passed that would lead to more direct immorality on the part of girls and boys than being compelled by this law to remain idle?" Mr. Scott says that as president of the Central Glass works of Wheeling he has educated four boys at night school. Two were orphans and the others had to support widowed mothers. "One of them was for seven years the manager of the factory and he died a year ago," said the senator. "He was earning $3000 a year when he died. He educated his family and established himself in a comfortable home. The present manager of my factory is a German boy, whom I sent to night school, who cared for three orphan sisters and one brother. He was only 11 years old when he came to me and today he is caring for and managing the factory which employs between 750 and 800 people. It is due to his own exertions and his education at night school that he is able to occupy his present place, by legislation he had been compelled to remain idle on the streets, in a loafing, unable to care for himself and family. The pending bill would do children the greatest injustice the senate could inflict." Senator Scott also points out that if the bill becomes a law, the page boys of the senate and house will have to be over sixteen years of age, while now they are appointed between the ages of ten and sixteen.

TELLS OF AMERICAN COLONY IN BERLIN

H. C. Dreyer Tells of Thanksgiving Services and Feast in Baptist Church.

Editor Gazette: Thinking there are some people in Janesville who would like to know of the American colony in Berlin, Germany, I have written the following:
The city of Berlin has a population of 2,083,339, and during the week of November 4, 1906, there were 999 births and 587 deaths. Like all large cities it has its very rich and very poor people.

Paris is called the gay city, but Berlin is not behind. If it is not gay by day it is by night. Along Frederick and Leipziger street it is difficult to walk after sundown, the crowds being so large. The Windsor Halls and other places of amusement open at noon and remain alive until day-break the morning following. In the multitudes are peoples of all nationalities.

The American colony is very prosperous. On fine appearing streets are American stores, shops and hotels. As customary, Thanksgiving Day was observed here. In one of the protestant churches, Dr. Johnson, of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church of New York City, preached at the services on that day. He said, that though his hearers were not in their native land they were not in slavery, as were the Hebrews in Egypt, and that they could enjoy the celebration and joy in their liberty and prosperity. The Americans, he continued, are a religious people, they fear only God; the world says they live only for the dollar, but nowhere is there more charity than in the United States. When world calls for help, Americans pour out their money rapidly and plentifully; the Americans love freedom, their country and their church, and are brave. He closed with a toast to President Roosevelt, the Kaiser and the prosperity of the Colony. After church, a supper, or rather a dinner, was served in the Hotel Prinz Albrecht and about three hundred and twenty-five were present. The menu included: turkey, cranberries and mince pie. Consul Thackeray presented the Americans with the Kaiser's portrait, made for the occasion. This will hang in the church. The Consul stated that the Crown Prince had promised his portrait, but that it had not yet been completed.

Hoping some of the Gazette readers will find something of interest in this, I am
Yours truly,
H. C. DREYER.

NEW MAGAZINE HAS MANY NEW FEATURES

One of Them is a Series of Articles in Defense of the Home Market.

The 16-page magazine section which goes out to subscribers to the daily Gazette each week, beginning with today's issue, will contain, aside from other interesting material, an article each week in defense of the home market—an educational argument for the protection of and maintaining the home community, which is dependent, in fact, and must have its home stores and markets in order to flourish. Through education alone the home market cannot be protected, and the business people have the medium in their hands to carry on the good work to a successful issue. The argument which goes forth in the Gazette's Magazine will be but a starter—a drop in the bucket, so to speak. Other and more strenuous work must be done to achieve the desired results. Business men must place in the hands of the public as full information regarding their goods and prices as are given continually in this way in the Gazette by the mail order houses, and by doing it continually in this way only can the tide of present time conditions of trade be changed.

The Gazette is ready and willing to aid in this campaign, but the help of the merchant must come also.

PARKER PEN CO. TO BUILD NEW FACTORY

On South Bluff St. Site, Opposite the Park Hotel—Old Property Will Be Sold.

If plans now under consideration materialize, the Parker Pen Co. will commence during the coming summer the erection of a new and commodious three-story factory on the South Bluff street side which is bounded on the north by the alley in the rear of the Myers theatre and which extends as far south as does the building fronting Main street which the company has owned and occupied for several years. The latter property is offered for sale. The land on which the new structure is to be located has been owned by the concern for some time. The building is to be constructed of cement and brick and when finished will be one of the most complete and commodious pen manufacturing plants in the country.

The best aid to temperance is something that will strengthen the drunkard's wrecked nervous system and cure his unnatural craving for drink. We believe that any man who really desires to be cured of the liquor habit can cure himself by using Orin. This remarkable discovery has made so many cures among our customers that we are glad to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

It is in two forms: No. 1, that can be given secretly, and No. 2, for those who wish to be cured. It is not only the most reliable treatment known, but it is also the most economical as it costs only $1 a box and there is no detention from the usual duties, while if cure is not effected, there is no expense whatever. ## DETECTIVE CAME FOR OTTO LENTZ

With a Warrant For Non-support Sworn Out by His Wife Who is Now in Milwaukee.

Otto Lentz of this city was arrested while at work with a section gang yesterday afternoon, on a warrant for non-support sworn out by his wife who is now residing in Milwaukee. He was taken either on the five o'clock train by Detective Dornington who came here with the warrant. This is the third time Lentz has been arrested on this charge and he will fight the case to a finish, claiming that his spouse willfully deserted him; that he has at all times provided her with whatever money he has been able to earn; and that this latest act is part and parcel of a system of malicious persecution against him which she inaugurated long ago. The sympathy of local people who appear to know anything about the case seems to be almost entirely with the husband.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"It is not the work, but the worry,
That makes the world grow old,
That numbers the years of its children
Ere half the story is told;

That weakens their faith in heaven
'And the wisdom of God's great plan;
'Ah, 'tis not the work, but the worry
That breaks the heart of man!"

This choice sentiment is from a little poem in the Catholic Citizen.

It is well worth tacking onto the list of New Year's resolutions, for every line is true and very significant.

The world has, a few overworked people, but the class is not very large, and does not compare numerically with the disgruntled and dissatisfied element.

The ability and opportunity to work is the greatest blessing that can come to any life; yet it is not always appreciated until disability lays us on the shelf, and then we sit by the window and envy the man who goes by with his dinner pail.

It was said of Marshall Field, when he dropped out of the race at 72, that his life was shortened by overwork, and the same comment is heard today concerning the sudden death of President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania road.

The prediction is also made that Harriman and Hill will not long remain, unless they take time to rest; but in judging this class of men the fact is overlooked that their keenest enjoyment is found in the greatest activity, and that voluntary idleness would mean premature decay.

There is another fact, not always recognized, and that is that a man is always at his best when he dies with the harness on, and in the midst of the fray. The heroes of song and story are always found at the front, and never in the commissary department.

This country supports an army of old people who have been sidetracked. Many of them are helpless and dependent through inactivity, who might have been active and self-reliant, down to the verge of time, had they kept their hand on the plow and feet in the furrow, to the end of the row.

One of the perplexing questions which large corporations are attempting to solve today is the pension question for old men, who are obliged to retire from active service because of the age limit.

In solving this question, one of the most important features has been overlooked, and that is that some men are in the prime of life when the hand on the dial indicates that they are old. Some boys mature at 15 and others never mature; from this class come the men who are "30 years young" and they are found in every community.

There are a number of old engineers in Janesville, whose names are on the pension list. When they stepped down from the cab, after the last run, with a record of 40 years of faithful service; to their credit, there was nothing to indicate impaired faculties, or weakened vitality. They were men of steady nerve, and sturdy presence, possessing a love for their work which absorbed every fibre of their being, and the order which laid them off was like a death knell.

Did you ever notice one of these old veterans as he paced up and down the platform about the time his old train was due? The first faint note of the whistle at the crossing, was recognized, and as he stood by the engine which throbbed with impatient life, a few moments later, you heard him say to a friend, "She's a beauty, John."

His heart was on his sleeve, for a moment, and he yearned to climb up and take his old seat in the cab, and with hand on the lever, listen to the rumble of the wheels, and the music of the steam, sweeter harmony than any lullaby.

There is something pathetic about the enforced retirement of this class of men, for when a lifetime has been devoted to a single calling, there is nothing left but to create a disturbance in the garden, and sit in the corner and wait for final orders.

But the people who die prematurely, are not the overworked class. Work is a tonic that aids digestion, invites sleep, and prolongs the years of existence. The author of the sentiment under discussion very truthfully says:

"It is not the work, but the worry,
That wrinkles the smooth fair face,
That blends gray hairs with the dusky
And robs the form of its grace;
That dims the luster and sparkle
Of eyes that were once so bright,
But now are heavy and troubled

With a weary, despondent light.

"It is not the work, but the worry,
That drives all sleep away,
As we toss and turn and wonder
About the cares of the day.
Do we think of the hand's hard labor
Or the steps of the tired feet?
Ah, no! But we plan and ponder,
How both ends can be made to meet.

"It is not the work, but the worry,
That makes us sober and sad,
That makes us narrow and sordid
When we should be cheery and glad.
There's a shadow before the sunlight,
And even a cloud in the blue;
The scent of the rose is tainted,
The notes of the song are untrue."

That tells the story of premature death and early decay. The worries of life sap vitality, and contribute very largely to the wreckage, both mental and physical, which line the pathway.

An all-wise providence designed that people should live by the day, and the wholesome truth, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," was recorded a long time ago, and yet the worries of life are largely based on anticipation.

The average life, in normal condition, is intended to live out all allotted time, and if conditions are favorable, the years are prolonged well up toward the century mark, but the silent cities are largely populated by people who unconsciously committed suicide before the race was half completed.

An overworked stomach produces indigestion; the heart pounds and struggles in efforts to carry the burden, and the victim jumps to the conclusion that heart disease is rapidly developing. Worry and more stuffing aggravates the disorder, and apoplexy carries off a new recruit.

A careful perusal of patent medicine announcements will convince the most skeptical that any sort of a disease he may choose to select is after him, and only needs cultivation for full development. People are expected to die of old age, after the machinery is worn out.

The farmer who draws his inspiration from a Hicks almanac, spends so much time worrying about the weather, that he forgets all about the seed-time and harvest promise, and then wonders why his crops are a failure.

The mother goes about the house, sighing a dregs of worry about the children, instead of humming a song of content, because she has them, and then imagines that the children are ungrateful because they try to escape from the gloomy atmosphere.

Worry of every sort is the canker worm that destroys the root, and poisons the fountain. It means blight and death, and the man who cultivates it never fails to suffer the consequences.

It is a good time, at the opening of a new year, to change front, out out the worries, fill up on hope and courage, and with steady purpose take up the work of life with determination to win.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

The magazine section contained in this issue of the Gazette will be repeated in every Saturday issue of the daily for the year. It has been made a feature of the paper at liberal expense, and will be distributed without extra cost to the subscriber.

This magazine section is introduced for a double purpose. First, to give the reader more for his money, and thus make the paper more desirable. Second, and more important, to educate the people along the lines of loyalty to the home market.

On page eight of the magazine will be found an article on "The Lure of the City," which will bear careful reading. It has to do with conditions which exist today, and which threaten the country towns and inland cities in all parts of the land.

The mail order business has reached a stage where it is more than a menace, for it has already driven an army of small merchants from the field, and threatens the life of many more.

The serious question, and the one which every merchant can afford to consider, is, what can be done to drive out this competition, and redeem the field? To this important question the magazine section is devoted, and the object of the publishers is to give it a wide circulation in an effort to educate the people.

In this issue organization is recommended, and it is a good suggestion. No single merchant can meet the competition of a house that handles all lines of goods, but a combination of merchants, well organized and intelligently handled, can do much to hold the trade in the local field.

The buyer needs educating. While the mail order price lists are attractive, many of the goods are inferior. He needs to be told, not once but repeatedly, that his good money will go farther in the home market, and in time he will become convinced of the fact.

In other words, if the merchants of any town will organize for a campaign of persistent publicity, the mail order houses can be driven out. The local press, which goes into the home every day or every week, is the best medium known for this kind of publicity. Fill it up with cuts and prices, and keep everlastingly at it for a year, and results will surprise the most skeptical.

The Gazette is with the merchants of Janesville for this kind of a fight for the trade that naturally belongs to the city. In evidence of good faith the paper has invested a thousand dollars in the magazine section, to aid in educating the people. Will you join us in the fight?

ARKANSAS FEELS A
TWINGE OF REMORSE

Anti-Trust Legislation Has Driven
Out the International Harvester Co.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 5.—(Special Correspondence.)—The first of January marked the departure of the International Harvester company from Arkansas, which will accordingly be without a home dealer in harvesting implements. The business will henceforth be conducted from Memphis. Incidentally, the name of Arkansas is likely to lead all the rest when it comes to making up a list of those who are giving up something with the beginning of the new year, even though such a resolution is not entirely voluntary.

The departure of the Harvester company, though voluntary, is due to the suits brought under the anti-trust law. The company admitted that subsequent to the passage of this law it had made exclusive contracts with its agents, like many other vehicle and machinery houses, and was subsequently fined. Previous to the trying of the suit, however, the exclusive clause was eliminated from all contracts, but the company in spite of the fact that it satisfied the law on this point, decided to leave the state.

Like most other things given up on the first of January, this abnegation is not popular. There is indeed much criticism of the law, not because of any love for trusts, but because it deprives the state of this business and will undoubtedly increase the cost of implements to the farmers. It is generally stated that what is wanted in place of the present law is one which will prohibit those actions which may be deemed undesirable, without limiting the development of the state by driving business away. The feature of the law is its extraterritoriality; that is, the clause which may make the conduct of the business of any corporation anywhere in the world ground for legal proceedings against it in Arkansas. Evidently what is wanted is the elimination of this extraterritorial feature.

In the case of the Harvester company, grave doubts were expressed as to the results. Mr. Hamp Williams, chief Springs, who has attracted attention locally through his crusade against gambling at the resort, in commenting on this working of the law said:

"I think something should be done to remedy the present anti-trust law. We want one which will prohibit illegal combinations or anything of the sort, but we do not want business driven from the state. The Harvester company will simply move to Memphis and go ahead. That does not help Arkansas, but hurts it, for former agents will now have to buy their stock outright instead of having it carried on commission, and very few of them have the capital for that."

Consequently, the farmer will have to pay the local freight from Memphis, thus increasing the cost of his machine. Likewise parts for repairs, formerly carried by agents on commission will now cost more. So far as I can see, the state is not benefiting at all by this law, but instead is being harmed. What we want is a law that will make corporations, too, the mark, but will not hurt the state, as does the present law. If an organization doing business here according to the law can be fined or ousted because a branch office thousands of miles away infringes our regulations, it naturally is not going to stay here. That is the way the present law works. If I am doing the state any good, and in this case it will make me richer, I am a firm believer in the regulation of corporations, but I think our law ought to be changed for our own good. It goes too far, and, in my opinion, is a mistake."

In view of the President's remarks in his message on anti-trust legislation, coupled with his plea for the exercise of care and discrimination, the situation in this state is fraught with interest, not only here where its working is felt, but to other states as well.

Literary Note

Just now, while the question of our relations with Japan is arousing discussion in all quarters, an article in the January Atlantic on "Japan and the Philippine Islands" will be read with special interest. James A. Le Roy, the author, whose earlier article in the same magazine on "Race Prejudice in the Philippines" attracted such wide attention, has had every opportunity, both official and personal, to study the facts at first hand; and he speaks with authority. The San Francisco school fracas, he asserts, is important, chiefly because it brings us face to face with the world-old antagonism of the Occident and the Orient. Is this antagonism a reasonable one, or is it merely prejudice? Is there really a "yellow peril"? Spain, it seems, was always in dread of it; she feared Japan's designs upon her Philippine possessions. Mr. Le Roy gives a striking resume of these scares in the past, and points out how futile they have been proved in fact. Japan does not want the islands; and the Philippines do not want Japan. What Japan does want most earnestly is the friendship of America; and there is every reason why a friendship between the two nations should be mutually profitable. Is race prejudice too deep-rooted to permit of this?

GOSSIP ABOUT THE PRESIDENCY

MEN WHO SEEK THIS HONOR
PLENTY.

CANDIDATES ARE AT WORK

Round of Dinners Given by Different
Officials During Next Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—In those feverish days of ante-convention political skirmishing, aspirants for presidential honors needs must have unblemished records as trenchermen. There is to be a veritable orgy of dinners within the next few weeks, and incidentally much importance is being put to the one given at the White House in honor of Speaker Cannon. It is the first time that President Roosevelt has given a dinner in the speaker's honor. Political wiseacres are of the opinion that this indication of the President's favor will go a long way toward shaping coming political events. Following close on the heels of the White House dinner will come the one to be given by the elongated Mr. Fairbanks, whose yearning for the presidential chair is well known. Practically everybody who is anybody in Washington has been invited, and among the guests will be seen a number who are entertaining presidential dreams themselves. There is no doubt that Mr. Fairbanks' guests scarcely will be in good trim again before they are summoned to the revels planned by the portly Mr. Taft, and not to be outdone, Mr. Foraker probably will have a function. The silent Secretary Shaw also is expected to entertain within the month, and Uncle Joe will not let his light remain long hidden beneath the bushel. From present indications the next republican presidential candidate will be decided upon at some one of these feasts, although the decision, of course, will not be made known. Uncle Joe may lead in the political handicap with the appearance of the blue points, but before the entree is served Mr. Foraker or Mr. Fairbanks may be contesting for his place. In the number and importance of the feasts this season, Washington may well be compared with the palmy days of imperial Rome.

While the republican leaders are skirmishing over the viands for the honor of heading the ticket in 1908, the democrats are somewhat at a loss. In the South there has been a well-defined and extremely popular boom for Representative John Sharp Williams, the leader of the minority in the House. Mr. Williams this week put a quietus on the movement by declaring that he had not taken any steps whatever toward securing the nomination at the hands of his party, and added that, if he had decided to take the place were it offered to him, in his droll way Mr. Williams said that his principal objection was the fact that the White House is too damp and that Mrs. Williams declares she is irrevocably opposed to risking the health of their daughters, Kit and Sallie, in the chief executive's home.

Secretary Root is said to be preparing a statement supplementary to his New York speech on the subject of centralization. It is reported that the Secretary of State is decidedly disgruntled at the manner in which the country received his recent New York address. He had not intended to be revolutionary in any way, and he believes that it has been thoroughly misinterpreted by the press. It is explained that the Secretary means only to arouse the country to a realization of its shortcomings in the individual state governments, a condition which is arising through the great growth of commerce, and the consequent concentration in the lines of general business. He especially desired to call attention at the time to the danger of enacting laws that would conflict with the federal laws or with legislation enacted by neighboring states. Because of the wonderful and rapid growth in all lines of business, organizations of men, known as corporations, have come into existence in order to reduce expenses and cheapen the cost of production, to the end that the nation may capture its share of the world's trade. These big corporations, properly conducted, have made the United States one of the greatest commercial nations in the world. Practically all their business is interstate, and because a few of the so-called "trusts" violated the laws of the land, the states have endeavored to remedy what was perceived to be a real evil. The government, consequently, has been in a conflict in authority that augurs the commercial structure, not of the individual state but of the nation at large. The Secretary believes that the danger of this situation is existing prosperity is evident, and he was seeking to point out this legislative error in his New York address. He undoubtedly will seize upon the earliest opportunity to discuss further the subject, and make clear what he believes has been misinterpreted.

The Panama cocktail, according to the reports of President Roosevelt, who says that it is drunk with coffee at dinner every evening by the great majority of families in the canal zone, will hardly become popular here. It is really a health cocktail, to which not even Carrie Nation could object, since it consists entirely of liquid quinine and is taken not for pleasure but to ward off those ills to which Panama is heir. It is not much of a compliment to the Panama climate, but that is liable to continue indefinitely as a matter of discussion. Some of the visitors who return to Washington from the Canal make remarks about this same climate which are lurid, to put it mildly. Minister Squiers, on the other hand, who has now occupied the post for two months, has had nothing to say against it. His Washington friends have been trying to learn that since going to Panama both Mrs. and Miss Squiers have suffered illnesses, and the minister loyally refuses to attribute the cases to the climate, saying that it has not been a factor. Mr. Squiers' whole family is with him.

HE FINDS FRISCO A

Emil Christenson, Formerly Employed in the Jeffris Mill, Also Heartily
Dislikes the Japs.

From Emil Christenson, formerly employed in the Jeffris mill, who went to Texas and from thence to San Francisco, L. M. Nelson has received an interesting letter, describing conditions on the Pacific coast. Mr. Christenson is living at 1129 East 20th street, Oakland. He says that he is working in Frisco and getting along very fine despite the fact that the trade is overpowered. "Mechanics of every sort and calibre are scrambling out here. Most of them can neither speak nor read English, and in the union we are compelled to have interpreters of about all known nationalities. But, that isn't enough—for every once in a while a Solomon Isaakstein who can only talk Yiddish turns up direct from the Bowery in New York. Fellows are coming with languages never heard of before. Talk about Babel! This union is getting rich pretty fast. Think of 4,000 new members in five months at $30 per head—old Mr. Rockefeller will lose his last hair if he ever hears about it."

"As a consequence, the majority of mechanics who come are not worthy of the name, mechanic. They are called 'earthquakers' and as a rule work for a score of different contractors for a week or so each. The only tools they can handle with any safety are a hammer and a saw, and as a result of their use of these a new trade is looming up—that of saw-filing and tool-sharpening. Now, when a fellow happens to run all his saws through nails in a day, it requires two or three saw-filers at 25 cents a filing."

"There is a mighty agitation brewing against the Japs. Aboard every ship coming from Japan, the Orient is a crowd of monkey-faced Yellow-Jacks from Japan. It seems to me that the Americans are a funny people. In the east, they are seething ever and always with a good deal of reason, about the Russians and the South-European hordes, not to mention the 'big stick' to smash the whole of Europe, but it seems that Japan is the only one Uncle Sam is scared of—the poorest and least to consider. The Japs get into the U. S. without the least trouble, by the shipload, several times a month—everywhere the monkey faces are to be seen. Think of 100,000 of them in California alone." In closing the writer expresses the wish that all members of Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., of which he is a member and for which he forwards his dues, may enjoy a happy new year.

According to the annual report of the Philippine commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1906, the "little brown brothers" in the Philippines have been benevolently assimilated and peace has spread its wings over the islands. The Pulajanes and the Ladrones by reason of a policy of "benevolent assimilation" either have been wiped out, are under sentence of death for atrocious murders, or have been driven into the fastnesses of the hills, where their power for evil has practically disappeared. With regard to the industrial conditions in the islands, the situation is excellent. The typhoon of the early part of the year damaged the crops to the extent of some four million dollars, but on the whole the farmers are more prosperous and there is a general spread of peaceful agricultural. The balance of trade for the year in favor of the islands was $6,000,000. The commission recommends again that an agricultural bank be founded on the plan of the Egyptian Agricultural Bank, for the quick development of the agricultural resources of the islands. The commission also declares that the Philippines offer an excellent opportunity for the investment of American capital, and adds that the archipelago affords a splendid field for active and intelligent Americans to become residents.

There will probably be a pretty row in the meeting of the senate and house conferees on the immigration bills, which were passed at the last session under the same title, but with totally different texts. The bone of contention is the educational test, which Senator Lodge has inserted in the senate measure but which the House promptly set upon. The House is anxious to go to the seat of the trouble in the immigration test, by the appointment of inspectors and physicians with police powers at foreign ports, thus decreasing greatly the deportation of unwelcome aliens who seek to land. Apart from the educational clause, the differences undoubtedly can be adjusted, but there will be a bitter fight on that score.

MUCH TOBACCO IS SHIPPED FROM CITY

A. N. Jones Alone Loaded Twelve
Cars During the Last Three Days
—Some Goes to London.

About fifty carloads of leaf tobacco have been shipped out of the city in the past week or two. From one warehouse alone, that of A. N. Jones on North Main street, eight hundred and sixty cases, filling twelve cars, have been loaded in the last four days. This was the pick of the Southern Wisconsin crop of 1905 and was consigned to "carious" buyers. Some went east while five hundred odd cases were billed for the Imperial Tobacco company of London, the leaf "trust" of Great Britain. Julius Marqusee of New York city, who has the "black warehouse" at the corner of South Franklin and Riverside streets, shipped about a thousand cases. Seven hundred of these were of 1902 leaf and had been stored in the warehouse of M. F. Greene & Sons, the original purchasers. This lot also was for the Imperial company, as were numerous smaller lots from other warehouses.

The Land of Proverbial Milk and Honey.

We are now in a position to offer you irrigated or non-irrigated land in sunny Alberta, Canada, direct from the Canadian Pacific R.R. Co.

We say, and prove it by government records that Alberta is by long odds from the standpoint of climate the cream of grain growing provinces. It is verily the Colorado of Canada. Mean temperature at Calgary, Summer, 58.8; Winter, 13.9; Year, 37.4. Above zero.

It is not to the speculator who wants to buy a large tract of land and quietly waits for the settler to improve all the adjacent land and thus double the value of his land, but to the man who is a tiller of the soil, and can sell the land that cost him $10 to $20 per acre for $75 to $100 per acre, also to all renters who are paying rent enough every year to make good payment on a farm of their own and in a country where cattle and horses graze the whole year. A word to the man in the city who feels the land hunger and longs to get away from the treadmill of the city or serfdom of the factory; to the young man with a brave heart and brawny muscle, starting out in life to make home and fortune; to every man who wants an opportunity for ease, profitable farming, and at the same time, to profit by the inevitable rapid rise in land values; to the man who seeks a home in a delightful climate and a sure fortune that will reward his honest, industrious efforts, to the man who wants to better himself and family; to the man of modest means who longs for a comfortable fortune; to the man who knows by experience or belief that irrigation is the sure way of farming; to the man who is capable of seeing the opportunity of a lifetime and has the courage to grasp that opportunity we appeal. We have something for such men.

POINTS OUT THE LATEST REASONS

NIGGER IN THE PURE FOOD WOODPILE APPEARS.

PROF. WILEY WANTS POWER

He Would Be the Controlling Genius in the Enactment of the Law.

(Special Correspondence.)
Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—During the last three or four years we have heard much about a government by injunction, but it looks now, if all the schemes that have been proposed go through congress, that this will soon be a government by "experts." Everybody that has a right to ask for anything is asking for experts for this, that and the other thing. It is experts everywhere. This colossal republic of ours is a patient ox, capable and willing to carry all sorts and sizes of burdens, but the poor animal may be overloaded, and our house of cards come tumbling down. Modesty is born in some people, in others it is inherited, and in still others it comes by education and training. There might have once been some slight degree of modesty in the Department of Agriculture, but if so, that part of it allotted to the bureau of chemistry, this fled, like gratitude to brutish beasts.

Centralization has also occupied the attention of the public, more or less for some time, and has recently been revived in one or two sensational methods. This sort of centralization, however, has been wholly a disposition to take more power to the general government and leave less to the states, but there is a system of centralization that is growing up of a much more dangerous character—the centralization of power in the hands of subordinates. Everybody will remember the story of the Horse Leech's daughter, who, day and night, without ceasing was condemned to cry, "Give Give!" So it is with some of the members of the administrative part of our government. The more they have the more they want, and their voices are ever heard crying, "Give!"

For two years or more there was a growing demand for the enactment of a pure food law. The members were told that they were, and had been for a long time, dying on poisons; that the producer was adulterating his product before it got into the hands of the seller, and the seller was adding to the poisonous adulteration. There was much truth in all this. During the agitation of the subject it developed that Professor Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture, was the main agitator, and he received many praises for his "disinterested" efforts in behalf of the good health of all the people. Any one who will take the trouble to glance at the book of estimates submitted to congress by the secretary of the treasury will be very apt to come to the conclusion, when he reads the estimates relating to the bureau of chemistry, that there was a large-sized colored gentleman hidden in the pure food woodpile, and that the distinguished head of the chemistry bureau was not, after all, as disinterested as the public had been led to believe.

The appropriation for the bureau of chemistry for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, was $174,180. The amount asked for the next fiscal year jumps to nearly one million dollars, being, in fact, $937,720. Of this large amount the greatest bulk is asked for the establishment and maintenance of laboratories, here there, and everywhere, all under the direction and supervision of Chief Wiley. There has been a good deal of clamor on the part of government clerks in Washington for an increase of salary. Professor Wiley asks for only $1700 in the way of increased salaries, and of that he asks that $1500 be tacked onto his own salary, and the other $200 be given to his chief clerk. What was it Falstaff said about there being a deal of bread? When it is remembered that the estimates submitted by the secretary of the treasury are made from the estimates submitted by the heads of the other departments, and that the heads of departments submit the estimates as furnished by the heads of bureaus, it will be seen that the estimates asking for this increase of $763,540 for the expenses of the chemical bureau are made by Professor Wiley himself. The estimates ask for $750,000 to carry out the provisions of the pure food law. Laboratories are to be established in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle, Galveston and other large cities, and branches of the bureau are to be maintained in each of the states and territories for the purpose of collecting evidence to be used in prosecutions for food adulterations. All this under the management of Professor Wiley, who will be the real appointing power, and thus become greater than the secretary of agriculture himself.

In the Postoffice department there was, once upon a time, two very aspiring individuals—Beaver and Machan. They hounded and log-rolled until one was placed at the head of the division of salaries and allowances, and the other as chief of a bureau of free delivery, including that of rural routes. They manipulated until more and more power was centralized in them, until the postmaster general woke up and found that they were bigger than he. Members of congress who wanted favors in either of these two divisions ceased to ask them from the postmaster general, and put in his applications to the bureau chiefs. The very atmosphere of Washington became impregnated with scandal; Beavers and Machan were sent to the penitentiary, and other people found their names besmirched. Now, I have no intention of saying that Professor Wiley, if the disbursement of this $937,000 is left to him, will follow in the footsteps of Beavers and Machan, but I do desire to point out that centralization of power in one man is a dangerous experiment.

The good work of stirring up trouble continues at the government printing office. Trouble in that branch of the government service is like the ghost of Banquo in the play, having no disposition to lie still. Mr. Stillings is having his innings just now before the congressional committee, and he is telling some ugly things. He says that when he took charge of the office he found a large number of the employees habitually coming late to their work, thus losing a good deal of time the government was paying for. He issued an order calculated to put a stop to that sort of graft, and he says it raised "a perfect storm of protests from the employees." He claims that by this means he has reduced the number of tardy ones from more than two hundred a day to less than twenty-five. The rumpus between Mr. Stillings and the employees may result in giving the government printing office a pretty thorough cleaning to the advantage of the service.

It was predicted in this correspondence some time ago that this session of congress would be the liveliest short session known in many years. It only takes a glance at the subjects that have already been broached to see that this prediction is to be verified to the fullest extent. Both the senate and house have exhibited symptoms of being a little unruly, and the President is likely to find his legislative team a balky one. It will either balk or take the bit in its teeth and run away with the concern that will make lively and interesting politics for the next year or two to come. Some hard knocks have already been given, and several clubs are still poised in the air.

The President, secretary of war, and the committees on military affairs appear to be in harmony on the question of making better provisions for our coast defenses. It was in this correspondence that the deplorable condition of our coast defenses was first made public. All that was needed was to call the attention of the public to the subject to awaken an interest in every section of the country.

NEW OFFICIAL TO TAKE OATHS MONDAY

Judge Grimm's Active Work Will Not Begin, However, Until the Day Following—George Appleby to Be Turnkey.

On Monday morning Judge Benjamin F. Dunwiddie, who has been the able and distinguished presiding officer of the 12th judicial circuit for many years, will be succeeded on the bench by Judge George Grimm of Jefferson. The latter has already filed his oath and his active duties will not commence until Tuesday morning when the jury comes back for the adjourned session of the November term. There are only a few cases left for the consideration of the jury and the court, and these will probably be disposed of in short order.

Jesse Earle succeeds Ward Stevens as clerk of court and Miss Jessie McCrea will succeed Miss Genevieve Rich as deputy clerk of court. In the courthouse there will be no other changes in officers and deputies as County Clerk Howard Lee, County Treasurer Oliver Smith, and Register of Deeds Charles Weirick are to be their own successors.

Ira U. Fisher of Evansville will receive the keys of the county jail from Wallace Cochran, the retiring sheriff, and George Appleby will succeed William H. Jellman as turnkey and deputy. Mr. Jellman has the distinction of not having lost a prisoner or exchanged a harsh word with one during his term of office. He will return to the machinist's trade. Sheriff Cochran says that he has had on an average of from eight to ten prisoners throughout his term; that not one has been released before his term has expired; and that he will deliver about eight to the incoming officer's care.

It is quite probable that Judge Dunwiddie will again open a law office in Janesville, though his plans have not been announced. Clerk of Court Ward Stevens may decide to locate in a large city in Michigan and resume his law practice, though his plans are also unsettled. Miss Rich has not yet decided upon her future course and the same is true of Sheriff Cochran.

DEATH CLAIMED MRS. MARTHA DUNWIDDIE

Stepmother of Circuit Judge Passed Away at Home on South Bluff Street This Morning.

Shortly before eleven o'clock this morning Mrs. Martha Dunwiddie passed away at the home of her stepdaughter, Mrs. Joseph B. Humphrey, 259 South Bluff street. Death was due to paralysis, the first stroke of which she received three years ago. A second stroke came a year ago and her condition became suddenly worse Tuesday. For the past two days she was confined to her bed and unconscious and remained so to the end. The deceased, whose maiden name was Martha Mitchell, was born in Green county sixty-eight years ago. Twenty years ago she removed to Janesville and in October of 1893 became the bride of David Dunwiddie. He preceded her to the world beyond four years after their marriage and five step-children are left to mourn her demise. They are Mrs. J. B. Humphrey and Circuit Judge B. F. Dunwiddie of Janesville, Foster Dunwiddie of Delavan, Mrs. Herbert Goldin of Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Flora Dunwiddie of this city. She is survived also by a brother, Abner Mitchell of Iowa. The funeral will be held from the Humphrey residence Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock and the remains will be taken to Juda, Green county for burial. Mrs. Dunwiddie had been a member of both the Juda and Janesville Baptist churches and the pastors of those societies will officiate at the services.

Mrs. Bridget Reed
The remains of the late Mrs. Bridget Reed were tenderly laid at rest in Mount Olivet cemetery this morning. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. A. Goebel at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock and the pallbearers were two sons—Maurice and Nicholas Reed—and four grandsons—William, James, Frank and Ed Reed.

NOT A POUND OF ICE STORED YET

Rainstorms Swept Out the Five-inch Formation in Main Channel of River—Cold Snap Badly Needed.

"The ice which we have been delivering lately comes from the bay north of the storage houses," said Starr Atwood of the City Ice Co. this afternoon. "The two rainstorms swept out all of the five-inch formation in the main channel of the river and we have not yet stored a pound. Since last fall we have been buying in Beloit and other places to keep up with the daily demand, and only recently have we been able to get anything from the river for immediate deliveries. The bay ice is limited in quantity and only found close to shore, so we must have a good freeze-up if the winter's supply is to be laid in. As soon as we get it, we will have from 50 to 100 men at work on the river."

Mr. Atwood says that about $4,000 have been invested in the new 100x30 warehouse addition, the new runways, and the new planing machine which is designed to shave the top off all the blocks as they go into the ice house. The lower house which contains two rooms 100x30 in size and connected with the river by separate runways, has a new endless chain mechanism for carrying up the blocks which is to supplant the oldtime method in which a team of horses played the leading part.

Last year's ice crop was a distressing failure and the consumers who have had to bear part of the burden will join their prayers with those of the ice men for a good cold-snap of several days' duration.
